ABOUT ME

Imagination allows us to dream. It is these dreams that make us believe, and it is as a Web Developer that I roll up my sleeves and put those same dreams into practice. How do I do that? With lines of code and lots of CSS on top to make those dreams as perfect as possible!

WORK EXPERIENCE

Web Developer
Solinet [10/2016 – Current]

Address: Largo do Infante Santo, Sala 15, 2005-246 Santarém (Portugal)

Throughout my career, I went through several positions and challenges.

I started as UX / UI Developer, whose functions were to survey the requirements of applications / websites, as well as the design of their layouts. The tools that helped me in this position were Sketch, Figma, Adobe XD, Adobe PhotoSop and Affinity Photo.

About a few months later, I switched to Front End Developer, a title that I keep until today. This is where I feel good and do what I really like. The challenge of moving the conception of the idea / design to lines of code is something that stimulates me a lot.

Over the past few years as Front End Developer, I have worked on several projects, some smaller and brief, others more lasting and above all challenging. The projects that most marked me and made me grow in my area were two online platforms (APP), one of which consisted of managing sports clubs, from administrative issues to more sporting issues. The other APP is related to online course subscriptions, where users can subscribe to one of several plans that allows them to access content with more or less tools (it always depends on the subscribed plan).

For the development of these APP's, as well as smaller ones, I use React.js, SCSS or Styled Components, Redux and GIT as the main stacks.

HTML5, CSS3, SASS, Javascript Vanilla, Vue.js, Node.js, Express.js, MySQL, MongoDB, GraphQL, React Native, Gatsby.js, Apollo, are other stacks that I also work with and experience.
